South Georgia Custom Homes

Keith W. Blaschke , President

Keith feels right at home building homes for other people. He grew up on construction sites watching his dad wire new homes as an electrician. Before becoming a builder, Keith worked as a home lender at an Atlanta-based financial service company where he gained invaluable insight into the homeowner's perspective in the purchasing process. While this was a rewarding experience, he wanted to be more hands-on in getting people into their own homes.

Keith started working with a certified builder and then joined in with several local builders to construct new homes in one of Columbia County's fastest growing neighborhoods. After taking and passing the NASCLA-Accredited Examination for General Contractors in 2006, South Georgia Homes was born. Keith continuously hones his craft in the field, along with completing relevant coursework to improve his knowledge and skills.

Keith is passionate about helping people achieve their dream of home ownership through building quality homes that are suitable for a range of lifestyles, all the while delivering superior customer service and unsurpassed dedication to homeowner satisfaction.
